December 11, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Chicago based hoarder cleaning service Scene Care, Inc. is a fully licensed and insured emergency cleaning company who has been servicing the needs of Illinois citizens for the last 10 years, and are happy to be recognized for their quality service to the community.

Not only have they been recognized on a local level, but nationally as well. Company representative Michael Costigan said, "We have always been dedicated to compassionately serving the people of the greater Chicago community, and are very pleased to receive this honor."

Over the last decade the industrious company has managed to create a network of licensed firms across the nation that allow them to respond to any city, or town in the lower 48 states within two hours of notification of a suicide, crime scene, death or hoarder situation. Their service specialists are trained to handle any type of specialized cleaning need that may arise from serious events that affect the lives of many.

Hoarder cleanup, specifically, can bring with it a myriad of unique, and sometimes disturbing conditions which require very specific cleanup procedures in order to remove any bio-hazardous materials left behind by someone with this disorder.

Hoarding is a debilitating condition that affects individuals from all walks of life. Many of those afflicted do not understand that they are suffering from a type of psychological illness. Statistics on hoarding indicate that around 5% of the entire world population displays some type of hoarder personality traits.

Professionally trained cleaning specialists from Scenecare quietly enter and restore a home after a hoarder has moved on. Their promise is to discretely remove any and all remaining refuse, and clean and sanitize the area in order to return it to the previous livable condition. Unmarked vehicles and indistinguishable uniforms assure that no undue attention is given to their purpose.

They pride themselves in responding in a timely fashion and making sure to show the empathy and professionalism that is the mission of their company. SceneCare has the expertise required to handle every aspect of any emergency, or traumatic event with discretion. Their crews are trained in the art of getting in, and out of the scene of an unfortunate event with as little disruption to the upset, or grieving loved ones as humanly possible.
