December 14, 2015

December 14, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Today Philip Jepsen, CEO of Black Helm Entertainment, announced that updates have been made to the Team Star Angel web site, the official site for the "Star Angel" pentalogy and community. "Star Angel" is a five-book series, or pentalogy, written by author David G McDaniel. It is an all-ages sci-fi and adventure, and is described as the tale of a teenage girl catapulted from a normal life on Earth to an alien planet in the midst of war. Black Helm is an entertainment company focused on sci-fi and the young adult market.

"We like to make sure we announce when we've made significant updates to the site," says Mr. Jepsen. "To get the word out, and to let our readers know. We've just rolled out Book Three in the Star Angel series, and in conjunction with that new information has been added to the Team Star Angel site. Our author, David G McDaniel, has been fleshing out the series with additional info, like character bios, world histories, starship specs and so forth. That information has now been updated for Book Three on the Team Star Angel site."

Over the summer David G McDaniel signed with Black Helm and agreed to publish the five book series through them. Book One released in late July, and Book Two followed in early October. Book Three has recently been released, and as part of the release Mr. McDaniel has updated the additional information for the book on the Team Star Angel site. Team Star Angel is the hub for all information and links relating to the series.

"In the long run our goal is to drive a community," says Mr. Jepsen. "Star Angel is such a wonderful story about triumph, and we want to promote that with our readers and in the world at large. It's a very positive story, and where the main character, Jessica, overcomes odds no normal person would ever be expected to face, she shows us what we can accomplish if we decide to act. David, and Black Helm, very much want to see that spirit manifested as far and as wide as possible, and the updates to the site definitely help promote that."

Updates to the Team Star Angel site have been applied and can be viewed immediately. Links for other resources can also be found there.
