The reason behind the company?s tremendous success is its tried and tested 6-step water damage restoration process. The first step, which Dry Star Restoration excels at, is responding quickly to emergencies as time is critical in limiting any kind of water damage. Next, the company?s professionals inspect and assess all potential areas of damage using high-tech moisture-detecting tools that determine where the water has migrated.

Step 3 involves extracting the standing water from the structure to eliminate further damage and reduce drying time. Once the water has been removed, state-of-the-art drying equipment is used to eliminate the water retained by building materials, reducing the chance of mold damage. The company exhibits great care and uses up-to-date techniques to prevent damage from warping, swelling, buckling, and delamination.

Richard continues, ?Once the area has been dried, we perform odor removal and deodorization treatments. Our technicians clean your walls, flooring, furniture, upholstery, clothing, and other restorable personal items that have been damaged by the water. Finally, Step 6 consists of restoring your property back to pre-loss condition including minor repairs such as replacing drywall, installing new carpet, and correcting serious damage by performing major reconstruction of various areas of your property.?
