ERGO-Pedic Products, LLC, a business in Lynnwood, WA, has announced the launch of their brand new wedge shaped car cushion. The company produces therapeutic memory foam seat and back cushions that are designed to reduce back and tail bone pain. These coccyx cushions are designed to help reduce pain while driving or while otherwise traveling using uncomfortable seats on planes and trains. The newly launched cushion can also be used for hard desk chairs, and it is already proving to be very popular.

"The product was designed to correct deficiencies in other car cushions, which usually are too thick and position the driver too high on the seat, push them too far forward, or cut off leg circulation," says Bruce Selin from ERGO-Pedic Products LLC. "Our new cushion solves these problems and we're happy to see that it is already proving to be beneficial to people."

The cushion has been designed to help people sit without experiencing pain. It has been found to be particularly suitable for those with hip and tail bone or low back pain problems, including those who have hemorrhoids or prostate problems. It can be used in any seat, from offices to patio chairs and has also proven to be very comfortable for pregnant women. As it is made from memory foam, the cushion helps to reduce the pressure on sensitive areas by conforming to the body of the user. This also helps to protect from injury and helps to promote health spinal alignment and posture.

The cushion has already been positively received by users. "This is the perfect seat cushion for people with coccyx and lower back pain," says Malvina G. "My grandmother has been complaining of her back bothering her for some time. She also has the pain radiate to her hip. She has used cheap inflatable seat cushions in the past, without much relief. Since trying this pillow, she is grateful to me for giving it to her. She said she can sit for longer periods of time and that the pain she felt is often diminished."

The company is also famous for its lumbar pillow, which has been equally well received.
