September 05, 2023 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Nanotise, an Australian, family-owned sanitation and mold treatment company with over 16 years of experience, is offering a free mold inspection valued at $180 for all Sydney residents.

The company specializes in safe sanitizing, infection control, and mold remediation solutions to protect people, their homes, commercial facilities, and brand reputations. Offering both residential and commercial mold removal services, the company's success is due to its 4-step process that yields excellent results for all clients.

It begins with a thorough inspection of the home, especially confined spaces that are tucked away behind visible areas of the property. The company's technicians take thorough photographs and moisture readings and prepare a comprehensive report within 24 to 48 hours. The report includes the team's findings, proposed treatment, and an itemized quote.

"After the initial report has been made," says the spokesperson for Nanotise, "we focus on physically destroying the mold cells or rendering them inactive. This includes applying an antifungal and antibacterial solution that disinfects and sanitizes mold off all visible surfaces. While this takes care of killing the microscopic organisms, it is still attached to the surfaces. So, we proceed to hand clean all surfaces including walls, ceilings, furniture, ornaments, and items of clothing."

Finally, to stop mold from returning, the company's technicians use specially designed foggers to apply a long-lasting microscopic physical barrier to all surfaces. The hospital-grade silane quat antifungal technology that Nanotise uses is proven to defend surfaces against mold, bacteria, and viruses for an extended period of time.

"For commercial properties and serious mold infections, we gas it with chlorine dioxide," says the spokesperson. "This strategy is especially useful if the mold has infected confined spaces such as the ceiling, sub-floor, and wall cavities. The highly effective and fast-acting treatment leaves behind no residual toxicity making it completely safe for both humans and pets."

The company's long-term mold protection solution is a ground-breaking TGA-registered Australian-made surfactant called CRX which is exclusive to Nanotise. The eco-friendly and non-toxic product has strong antifungal and anti-microbial properties and, once dried, forms a long-lasting microscopic barrier that protects surfaces and inhibits future mold growth.

"Businesses can rely on us to provide a Mould Treatment Certificate specifying the treatment that was used," the spokesperson says. "This gives your clients and customers the assurance that you are taking all the steps necessary to ensure their safety. If required, we can also supplement this with ATP swab testing and/or tape-lift and RODAC plate sampling to indicate the hygiene of the surfaces post-treatment. Contact us today for more details."

The company's website lists several Australian businesses that have benefitted from its treatments and have made their premises safe for all visitors and renters. Nanotise also makes available a case study, brochures, and supporting documentation for customers to get a first-hand look at how it can make a difference for them.

Nanotise's long work history in Sydney and surrounding areas has earned it the respect of the city's homeowners and businesses. The five-star reviews on its Google Business Profile talk about the company's thorough work processes, high-quality results, and stellar customer service.

One such review says, "A huge shoutout to the team at Nanotise. They were amazing to deal with from start to finish. Yes, they are not the cheapest mold service out there, but I couldn't be happier!! Would highly recommend it to anyone who is experiencing any mold issues. These guys know what they are doing!"

Another homeowner writes, "Thank you Mark and the Team at Nanotise. From start to finish, they were very knowledgeable and provided me with good advice on how best to protect my home from mold. I feel so much better now knowing my house is free from mold. I would recommend these guys to anyone, they really know their stuff and are passionate about what they do! Thanks again Nanotise!"
