

Ridgeline Roofers Columbia Discusses the 4 Main Types of Roof Vents for Attic Ventilation

September 25, 2023

COLUMBIA, MD - September 25, 2023 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Ridgeline Roofers Columbia, a trusted roofing company serving Columbia, MD, and surrounding areas, has recently addressed the common question about the four main types of roof vents used for proper attic ventilation. Proper ventilation is crucial for regulating attic temperature, preventing moisture buildup, and extending roof lifespan. The company's experts explain the four types of vents, their benefits, and how they work together to ventilate an attic space.

According to Ridgeline Roofers Columbia, the four main types of roof vents are:

Ridge Vents - Ridge vents are installed along the roof ridge, or peak, and allow hot air to escape the attic. Made of shingles or metal, they are subtle, affordable, and require little maintenance.

Soffit Vents - Soffit vents are installed under the eaves and allow cool air to flow into the attic while hot air escapes through the ridge vent. These vents meet most modern attic ventilation requirements and maximize airflow.

Gable Vents - Gable vents are installed on the vertical triangular walls of the attic. Located at each end of the attic, they allow air to flow in and out through the gable. They are affordable, easy to install, and add curb appeal.

Turbine Vents - Mounted on the roof, turbine vents use wind power to draw hot, humid air out of the attic. They work in all weather, need little maintenance, and can reduce cooling costs.

The company's clients have repeatedly praised it for its high-quality workmanship, helpful and responsive customer service, and affordable service pricing. As a result, Ridgeline Roofers has even earned a perfect 5.0 out of 5.0 overall rating on its Google Business Profile. According to a satisfied customer on Google, David Hunter, he stated, "I want to thank the team at Ridgeline Roofers Columbia for the fantastic job on my roof and gutters. They were professional and hard working, got the job done in two days. The price was the best value and none of the other roofing companies I called could beat it. I would most definitely recommend Ridgeline Roofers Columbia, in fact I already have! Thanks again guys."

"Each type of vent works in tandem to create proper airflow through the attic space," a spokesperson for Ridgeline Roofers Columbia explained, "This airflow keeps attic temperatures in check and prevents moisture from damaging insulation, wood, shingles and the home's structure over time."

The spokesperson states that homes today usually require a balance of intake vents like soffits and outtake vents like ridge and gable vents. Turbine vents boost ventilation as needed. Older homes may require retrofitting to meet modern ventilation codes.
