Chase Smith, owner of Chase Pays Cash, says, ?We are happy to announce to homeowners that we buy houses Birmingham Alabama homeowners want to sell quickly. We are often contacted by frustrated homeowners. Let?s face it, you?ve put your house on the market and didn?t get any reasonable offers. Think about why? In fact, if you happen to live in Birmingham, you?re lucky to get even a few offers because most homeowners can go for weeks without a single decent offer. That?s not because the real estate market is at an all-time low, but because people looking for family homes are looking for a modern, well-furnished one.?

Selling a home to Chase Pays Cash requires just three simple steps. First of all, the homeowner has to contact them. They will be asking the homeowner several questions regarding the property, including how long it has been on the market and if any repairs are needed. In the second step, they will visit the home for sale to see for themselves the various details and its current condition. Next, they will make a no-obligation cash offer. If the property owner accepts the offer, they will make the necessary preparations to close the sale and this will usually take seven to 10 days, rather than the months it would take when going through the conventional process of selling with the help of a real estate agent.

There are a number of reasons why homeowners would want to sell their property to Chase Pays Cash. One reason is they have a much shorter closing time. While many home financing companies will take 30 days to close a transaction, in contrast, an all-cash buyer like Chase Pays Cash will be able to close in just one week. They will simply wire the amount to the home seller?s bank account and complete the process officially within a few days.

Second, they are willing to buy a home as-is, which means they are willing to purchase a home that requires repairs whether these are minor or major. They will also pay for the cleaning out of the home after purchasing it. Thus, homeowners need not worry about cleaning and/or repairing the property before selling it.

Third, the home seller need not worry about the home financing requested by the home buyer being declined. Since the offer would be in cash, there is no need to go through the time-consuming application for home financing.

Finally, Chase Pays Cash can make an offer within 24 hours. Once they have inspected the home for sale, they can provide an all-cash offer within 24 hours. At that point, the homeowner can either accept or reject the offer. The homeowner will in no way be obliged to accept the offer.

Chase Smith says, ?If you choose to sell your Birmingham house fast with a direct sale to Chase Pays Cash, we are able to close on your house in only a matter of days. We are ready in about a week. However, the actual day of closing is always left up to you. We want to make the home selling process as easy and beneficial for you as possible.
