December 21, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Catonsville, Maryland based company Ron's Amazing Products, has announced an upcoming holiday special on their popular spy pen camera. Ronald Hoff, owner of the company, announced the promotion, which can be seen on the Amazon marketplace.

"As a holiday treat to our customers, we lowered our price on Amazon," says Ronald Hoff. The company has lowered their price from the original $39.95 to $35 for those who purchase on the Amazon marketplace. Hoff states that the company simply wants to be certain that their customers are receiving their camera with the best value on the market.

"Also, this is a way of thanking our loyal customers," he states. "This is also great as a gift this holiday season so everyone will want to take advantage of this."

Amazon Prime members will still receive free shipping on their order, even with the offered discount by Ron's

Amazing Products. The spy pen camera, which can be seen at <http://www.amazon.com/gp/product/B00G2TEKM2>, has been a popular item since its initial launch earlier in the year, having more than 100 positive customer reviews in just the past few weeks. The pen camera features 8GB of memory and a high definition 720p lens. Users can enjoy color video quality in 30FPS AVI format. Hoff says that these are just a few of the benefits, and the reasons that the item has become so popular since its initial release.

Ron's Amazing Products offers a number of consumer items, along with their spy pen camera. The company states that the promotional discount will be available through the upcoming holiday shopping season, and that customers should take advantage and order now while they still have the spy pen in stock. Hoff explains that sales has risen substantially since the popularity of the pen has grown. Nevertheless, the company had decided to offer this special promotion as a way to help those who are searching for a unique yet useful gift for the Christmas season.
