

Quiet Bounce Reveals What a Silent Basketball Is Made Of

Quiet Bounce, a company based in Houston, TX, has explained that the silent basketball is made of soft foam that allows it to make almost no sound when the ball hits the ground, wall, or board. It is provided with millions of micropores to absorb the sound, which offers the advantage of not disturbing family members and neighbors. This allows basketball players, especially the young ones, practice or train indoors during those times when they were usually unable to do so with regular basketball.

Using new foaming technology, millions of small holes filled with air are embedded in the foam. The air in these tiny holes is discharged when the ball is squeezed to enhance the elasticity while preventing the ball from making a loud noise. This quiet basketball will also not cause significant damage to objects inside the home.

They want to point out that 97 percent of customers have indicated that they experienced an increase in their off-ball hand productivity after three weeks. Around 96 percent of their customers say they were able to become more active dribbling during those times and in places where it was previously impossible. And lastly, 93 percent of their customers revealed they will incorporate the silent basketball into their training.

The QBounce silent ball has been receiving many five star reviews. For instance, Carolanne W. gave them a five star rating and said, "Incredibly fast. We live in a flat and now girls can throw at home." In another review, Kara A. also gave them five stars and said, "Nice ball for practicing indoors. Simulates basketball size and, in some way, can improve dribbling skills." In another five star review, Royal B. said, "Silent dribbling is a unique experience, and this ball delivers it perfectly. It's like poetry in motion." Daniel H. also gave the QBounce five stars and said, "My roommate appreciates the quietness of this basketball during our games."

Parents also indicated their excitement about the QBounce silent basketball. One parent stated that she was pleasantly surprised as to how the silent basketball significantly improved her child's game because she was able to practice in their living room, even during late at night. Unlike regular basketball that causes loud and disruptive sounds when dribbled, the QBounce produces almost no sound. It feels just like a regular basketball but it doesn't make much sound when dribbled. This allowed her child to practice at home during those times when it was previously impossible to do so for fear of disturbing the neighbors.

The QBounce also surprised a basketball coach. As a result of the advantage of the players being able to practice and train at any time or anywhere without the loud and disruptive noise players improved their game. The coach also noted that QBounce was able to mimic the feel of the regular basketball. The result was a significantly improved game for the players because they have more opportunities for drills.

Meanwhile, a basketball player also expressed his surprise about the significant difference the QBounce has made for his game. Without the loud bounces, he was able to practice anywhere and anytime. He also noted that the QBounce felt like his game ball except that it didn't have the loud disturbing noises when dribbled, which allowed him to dribble anytime he wanted to practice.

In another five star review, Sandra C. also gave the QBounce a five star rating. She said, "I can finally practice my free throws without waking up my family. It's a game of precision and silence." Bode W. also gave the silent basketball a five star rating. He said, "This quiet basketball has made my background games so much more enjoyable."
