

Ferdos Family Dental Uses Planmeca 3 D Dental Imaging Technology, Ensuring Lowest Level of Radiation

January 05, 2024

Cornelia, Georgia - January 05, 2024 -
Ferdos Family Dental, which provides cosmetic dentistry services in Cornelia, GA, takes pride in their Planmeca 3D dental imaging technology, which is advanced tool for providing comprehensive imaging details for diagnosis, while having the lowest level of radiation exposure for the patient. They also want to emphasize that they have gained recognition as a Planmeca Ultra Low Dose? certified clinic.

The Planmeca 3D imaging system provides detailed, multidimensional views of dental anatomy, which can rotated, magnified, and dissected from any angle. This allows them to view important details that might be missed when using conventional 2D X-rays. Dr. Mark Ferdos says, ?With this sophisticated imaging available to us, we are equipped to identify and manage a broad spectrum of dental conditions with greater precision and confidence.?

Another advantage of the Planmeca 3D imaging system is that getting an X-ray image is a very comfortable experience. The patient can sit or stand in the unit while the imaging carousel revolves around the head. It also offers a better alternative to other imaging systems that require the placement of sensors inside the mouth. The advanced imaging system they use is equipped with smart capabilities that are unmatched, boosting the level of care that they can provide. It also offers the benefit of being capable of capturing a clear image on the first attempt without the need to repeat the process.

The Planmeca 3D imaging system also allows Ferdos Family Dental to offer dental implant treatment in their dental office. Dental implants provide a revolutionary way of replacing lost teeth. A dental implant is a titanium cylinder or post that is carefully placed under the gum line, which enables the dentists to position replacement teeth, a bridge or denture, in the location where there are missing teeth. Dental implants permit the dentist to replace from one to all of the patient?s teeth and they can also be utilized to anchor poorly fitting or loose dentures, allowing the patient to chew and enjoy food like when they have their original teeth.

Dr. Mark Ferdos wants to emphasize the importance of replacing missing teeth. He says, ?A missing tooth that is not replaced sets off a series of events in your mouth which can be very hard to correct. Over time, the jaw bone starts to recede or ?melt away? causing a defect in the jaw. This loss of bone can also affect the teeth next to the open space. This is why people who have lost most of their teeth appear to have a ?caved-in? appearance to their mouths while not wearing dentures.?

Missing teeth can also affect the remaining teeth and also the patient?s overall health. This is because teeth act as a structure for the face and the loss of even a single tooth can shift the surrounding teeth, which may result into aesthetic issues and bite problems.
