Cherry Hill Township, New Jersey - November 21, 2023 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Cherry Hill Recovery Center, which is located in Cherry Hill, NJ, and Pennsylvania Recovery Center have joined forces to provide the services of a drug and alcohol detox center in PA. This addiction treatment facility will help provide detox, rehab, and outpatient drug rehab in Pennsylvania. They are also getting ready to launch a program that is designed for veterans. They also want to stress that they also offer mental health services, such as eye movement desensitization and reprocessing (EMDR) therapy.

This detox center in Phoenixville, PA, is geared towards supporting the patient in going through the detox process and guide towards full addiction treatment. It is important to note that with this detox center, those who are suffering from an addiction won't have to face the unpredictable challenges and difficulties that they may encounter during drug and alcohol withdrawal alone. They have a team of specialists who will be monitoring the patient's progress. They will also administer any necessary medications and assist the patient with any potential complications.

The detox process is that period when patients will abstain from drugs or alcohol and the body naturally gets rid of the toxins, which may cause unpleasant but usually non-lethal symptoms that have both physical and emotional aspects. At the detox center, they consider these symptoms are indications of the body's attempt to bring back equilibrium. Those who underwent detox typically feel strengthened and mentally prepared for the upcoming challenges in their addiction treatment journey.

At the drug and alcohol recovery center in Pennsylvania, they provide personalized detox programs for a variety of substances, such as: alcohol, heroin, meth, opiate, marijuana, and benzodiazepine. Meanwhile, Cherry Hill Recovery Center specializes in outpatient drug rehab through their drug and alcohol detox center in NJ.

Dr. Jeffrey Simon, Chief Medical Officer for Cherry Hill Recovery Center, says, "Our outpatient drug rehab program is designed to empower individuals on their recovery journey while allowing the flexibility to maintain daily responsibilities. As you search for "outpatient drug rehab near me," Cherry Hill Recovery Center stands out as a haven for those seeking comprehensive, individualized care within their community."

They want to emphasize that outpatient drug rehab at their facility is a dynamic process that is custom-fitted to the patient's specific needs. Their program provides a supportive environment for the individual through a combination of evidence-based therapies, group support, and counseling. The primary idea is to address the underlying causes of the addiction while allowing the patient to maintain their daily activities. The duration of the outpatient drug rehab process will depend on the progress of the individual. They always take a flexible yet comprehensive approach, which enables the individuals to progress in their recovery at their own pace while ensuring they are provided with a solid foundation for sustained recovery.

Dr. Jeffrey Simon is a highly skilled and triple trained physician who is focused on addiction treatment and psychiatry. He finished his general and adult psychiatry residency at the LSU/Ochsner Medical Center in New Orleans, right after Hurricane Katrina had caused a lot of damage. He then provided psychiatric care to the hurricane victims during the crisis that lasted for several years. After completing his residency, he went to the Mount Sinai Hospital in NY and Rutgers University/UMDNJ for his Fellowship in Child and Adolescent Psychiatry. He also earned a Fellowship in Addiction Medicine and Psychiatry at the Dartmouth-Geisel School of Medicine.

Cherry Hill Recovery Center was established by Dr. Jeffrey Simon to offer high-quality drug and alcohol rehab services in New Jersey, while applying a holistic concept that considers the physical, psychological, and emotional factors of addiction. They have a team of experienced professionals such as licensed therapists and established addiction specialists who always apply evidence-based practices, personalized treatment plans, and compassionate care.
