December 23, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The Valspring Group Ltd., a Berwick, Nova Scotia, Canada based company, has recently launched its first product onto the UK market. The popular Gardener's Friend 3-Stage Ratchet Pruners has already been established in the United States market through the Amazon marketplace.

The product was an instant hit on the U.S. marketplace as it allows those with arthritis and other hand mobility problems to garden with ease. Paul Grimm, president of the company, states, "We are excited to be bringing this product to our UK customers. It was such a hit on the U.S. market that we know it will be widely received in the UK as well."

Those interested in learning more about the pruner can check out here, which offers a complete list of the ergonomic benefits and its benefits to those with hand mobility problems that may generally keep them from enjoying gardening.

In correlation with the UK product launch, the company has also released a video that explains how to use the product, and gives more general information about the benefits of the pruner. Consumers who are interested can {watch now|watch here|view} the video.

Paul Grimm states that the pruner is an excellent choice for those with arthritis, bursitis, or other kinds of inflammation that may hinder them from grasping regular gardening tools. "We have designed it specifically with those people who have mobility issues in mind. The design itself is perfect for holding, particularly by someone who typically cannot grasp scissors or other pruners," explains Grimm.

The company has officially launched the product onto the Amazon marketplace in the UK, and it is available now for order. The launch onto the UK marketplace will in no way affect the product on the U.S. marketplace, where it has become quite a popular item.

Those interested in learning more about the design or about the overall benefits of the pruners can visit the company's official website for more info. The pruners are now available on Amazon and information about their benefits can also be seen on the official product page on the marketplace.
