

IMHO Reviews Says Goodbye to Mindvalley Black Friday Deal And Discusses Social Media Summit

November 30, 2023

AVENTURA, FL - November 30, 2023 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

As the calendar turned and the final hours of Mindvalley's acclaimed Black Friday deal that offered a substantial 40% discount throughout November, ticked away, Vitaliy Lano, the CEO of IMHO Reviews, reflected on the significance of this time-limited opportunity. For Lano and the IMHO Reviews team, the end of November marks not just a period of savings but a strategic moment to equip themselves with essential digital assets and services for the year ahead. "Black Friday and Cyber Monday aren't just about discounts; they're about smart planning for future success," Vitaliy commented, underscoring the importance of these deals in setting the stage for IMHO Reviews' strategies in the new year.

Delving deeper into his personal ethos, Vitaliy emphasized the crucial balance of mental and physical fitness, alongside the nurturing of healthy relationships, as pillars for a productive and fulfilling year. "To excel both personally and professionally, it's essential to stay sharp, in shape, and connected with loved ones," Vitaliy expressed. In his quest for holistic development, Vitaliy turned to Mindvalley, a platform he now routinely incorporates into his daily life. Distinct from other educational platforms like Udemy and Skillshare, which are often focused on specific skill enhancements, Mindvalley adopts a unique microlearning approach. This method, Lano suggested, is not just a tool for individual improvement but also serves as a catalyst for family bonding and collective growth.

Sharing his personal experiences, Vitaliy revealed how learning together with his wife through Mindvalley has introduced new layers to their relationship. "Engaging in these courses together has sparked fresh conversations, ideas, and a shared inspiration. It's about growing together, not apart," Vitaliy reflected, highlighting the platform's role in fostering a deeper connection with his spouse.

Beyond personal growth, Vitaliy has observed a notable surge in Mindvalley's community, particularly during November. "This increase in membership is a testament to the platform's impact. I am confident that by next Black Friday, we'll witness a wave of success stories from these new members, all harnessing the power of the knowledge and community that Mindvalley offers," Vitaliy predicted.

In a move that marks yet another milestone in its journey of transformative education, Mindvalley is gearing up to host a landmark event - the free 3-day Social Media Summit. Scheduled for December 8-10, this event promises to be a game-changer for individuals and professionals seeking to elevate their social media presence. Vitaliy Lano highly recommends this opportunity, noting, "In today's digital age, mastering social media is not just an advantage, it's a necessity."

The Summit, which is open to all, is particularly geared towards those aspiring to grow their brand, increase their social media engagement, and harness the art of storytelling to sell products or services. Vitaliy emphasized, "Whether you are an entrepreneur, a content creator, or someone looking to make a mark on social media, this Summit is a must-attend event."

Mindvalley's Social Media Summit stands out for its collaboration with some of the leading institutions and experts in the field. Participants will gain insights from the renowned Nas Academy, known for its social media work with world governments, and Brendan Kane of Hook Point, a noted authority on social media growth. The lineup also includes social media marketing trainer John Lee, AI experts Domenic Ashburn and Iman Oubou, and Mindvalley's internal team. "This Summit is a convergence of the best in the industry. It's an unmissable opportunity to learn from the maestros of social media," added Lano.

Further enriching its offerings, Mindvalley introduces a series of upcoming Quests designed to empower and inspire. The 'Personal Finance Quest' led by Jaspreet Singh is tailored for those looking to enhance their financial acumen. It offers a blend of practical wisdom and actionable strategies to build a strong financial foundation and navigate financial risks effectively. "This Quest is more than just learning; it's about transforming your financial future," Lano pointed out.

For individuals aiming to push their limits and achieve more, the 'Champion Mindset Quest' by Florencia Andrés is an ideal choice. This Quest breaks down success into actionable steps, offering techniques that have already changed over a million lives. "Florencia Andrés' approach in the Champion Mindset is all about turning dreams into tangible achievements," Lano remarked.

Lastly, the 'Stage Effect Quest' by Eric Edmeades is for those looking to make an impact through public speaking. This program teaches effective speaking techniques to connect with audiences and enhance personal and professional influence. "Eric's method is about effortless presentation skills for any situation, a crucial skill in today's world," said Lano.

As Mindvalley continues to grow and evolve, these new programs represent its commitment to being at the forefront of personal development and human potential. "These Quests are more than just courses; they are journeys of transformation," concluded Vitaliy, highlighting the profound impact they have on individuals' lives. "IMHO Reviews will continue its journey alongside, diving deep into these new programs and sharing our experiences with our audience."

In closing, Lano extended an invitation to join the journey of growth and discovery with Mindvalley. "Whether it's enhancing your social media skills, mastering your finances, developing a winning mindset, or perfecting your public speaking, Mindvalley offers a path to success. We are excited to see where these new adventures lead us and our audience," Vitaliy concluded, looking forward to the countless success stories that will emerge from these endeavours.
