Southeast Softwash Unveils Game Changing Soft Wash Pump To Transform Cleaning Industry

December 20, 2023

December 20, 2023 -
Southeast Softwash LLC, based in Roanoke, AL, is delighted to unveil the Super Pump, a new softwash pump that the company says stands ready to take the industry by storm. The company says that this state-of-the-art system offers a number of advantages over other models that many will want to take advantage of today.

According to Southeast Softwash, the main issue with most softwash gear on the market is that they have a habit of coming with one or more significant compromises that prevent them from truly functioning as an all-inclusive and adaptable solution. A softwash pump that is affordable and easy to maintain, for instance, will be appreciated by technicians, but this combination of factors may come at the expense of a more powerful system.

Further, any attempt to correct this would likely change the equation, such as by increasing both upfront and ongoing costs in order to improve performance. However, this is also why the company says technicians should take notice of the Super Pump ? it offers high performance, low maintenance and moderate cost, all in one pump.

This alone would make it the envy of wash technicians across the nation, but Southeast Softwash says there is more to consider. For instance, the all-electric system also gives technicians the ability to perform a tool-less pump swap in under a minute, and it boasts a variable power control setting that can take it from approximately 7 gpm to a stunning 16 gpm. The latter setting, the company points out, can easily shoot over 5 stories if necessary. It requires a 24 volt power supply (which can be provided by a battery bank), and it can achieve pressures of up to 175 psi.

The all-electric, power-efficient design also means technicians will no longer be forced to utilize less environmentally friendly power sources to run this aspect of their business. Southeast Softwash adds that technicians may use this metering valve, the Batch Buster Softwash Metering Valve, to make the most of the Super Pump?s power and versatility.

In any case, the average wash technician will notice an immediate impact on their ability to switch gear on-the-go, respond to updates in customer requirements and even make their overall gear volume more compact. The Super Pump, the company explains, functionally behaves as a quality-of-life improvement that puts all its counterparts to shame.

Southeast Softwash has a storied history in the industry, with its founders? experiments in effective softwashing techniques going back decades. While the root of the company?s strengths and innovation can be found in the late 1980s, its equipment manufacturing division was launched in 2018, and the company is proud to note that its reputation for excellence has continued on unabated.

The company?s reviews showcase comments from a vast number of satisfied clients. Notably, Southeast Softwash?s review scores also illustrate the fact that the company has provided a consistent standard of service for several years, a trait that has contributed enormously to their respectable position in the community.

As Lance P. said in his review a few years ago, ?Beyond impressed working with the Southeast Softwash team. I had a trailer built by them that I just picked up this past Friday. The trailer is well-built and pulls like a dream on the highway. I also attended the Wash-A-Thon event in February, and I was able to learn everything about the Softwash/Pressure wash business. I definitely recommend Southeast Softwash for any training, equipment, supplies or cleaning you need. Thanks, Southeast!?

More recently, Jay M. commented that, ?Southeast Softwash operates with a high standard of ethics and integrity. They manufacture and sell quality equipment, chemicals and parts that take a lot of headaches out of starting and operating your own business. The training is absolutely essential for people like myself who want to succeed and provide my customers with the best service possible.?

Wash technicians who would like to learn more about the Super Pump are invited to contact Southeast Softwash today for a more complete breakdown of its capabilities and features. The company takes an active interest in pushing soft wash systems (and the industry as a whole) to their limit, and they leave no stone unturned where innovation and progress are concerned.

The Super Pump can be purchased immediately via the official Southeast Softwash website. The company has also published videos exploring its potential on their Youtube channel.
