December 05, 2023 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

CyberMaxx, LLC., a tech-enabled cybersecurity services company, announced that it has experienced growth, led by the adoption of its next-generation Managed Detection and Response (MDR) solution MaxxMDR and its MaxxMDR bundles. Fast customer adoption of the new MDR bundles validates the company's unique solution for security teams that resulted from its recent acquisition.

The MDR bundles strengthen managed detection and endpoint detection response capabilities with insights from offensive solutions and provide a uniform customer experience at a competitive investment level. CyberMaxx has experienced significant demand for the new offering with several customers expanding their investment.

CyberMaxx customer YMCA is one example of an organization who have embraced the MDR bundles to strengthen its cybersecurity infrastructure. "We have had a longstanding partnership with CyberMaxx and have chosen to expand the scope to include their offensive solutions. The trust we have with CyberMaxx is truly in line with our vision at YMCA to feel secure at every stage of life for both our community members and securing our organization," said Tom Gardner, Senior Vice President, and Chief Information Officer at YMCA. "We have relied on their defensive solutions for two years, and the ability to partner with the same trusted vendor for our offensive security needs keeps the same peace of mind in place so we can continue to focus on supporting our overall mission."

Combining offensive security services with defensive monitoring and endpoint detection response to inform and improve security posture gives security leaders a trusted partner to take more of the day-to-day burden off their analysts, allowing them to focus the critical projects for their business.

On the heels of launching its revamped MDR solution, CyberMaxx strengthened its leadership team by adding three new senior leaders who joined to help the company capitalize on the market demand for its offerings. CyberMaxx welcomed Clint Poole, Chief Marketing Officer, Anne Correia, Vice President of Customer Experience, and Christine Karaptian, Chief People Officer.

Clint will drive the company's market positioning and revenue growth programs as Chief Marketing Officer. Prior to CyberMaxx, he was CMO at cloud email security provider Egress Software. Previously he held CMO roles at growth SaaS companies Onshape, Paycor, and Lionbridge.

Anne joined to drive the development of a world-class Customer Experience organization at CyberMaxx focused on driving revenue and creating raving fans from its customers. Prior to CyberMaxx Anne was the Vice President of Customer Success at Cynet Security. Previously she held customer success roles at cybersecurity leaders Security Scorecard and Veracode.

As Chief People Officer, Christine will spearhead the development of a global culture that enables the company's growth strategy. Previously she was the Vice President of HR at SaaS FinTech company Autobooks and has held people leadership positions at growth companies PrizeLogic, Apparatus Solutions, and Valassis, where she helped drive the cultural change required to meet the adapting strategies of the company.

"We are in the unique position to help our customers better secure their environments because we offer a comprehensive suite of offensive and defensive solutions," said Brian M. Ahern, CEO of CyberMaxx. "We've built out our leadership team to not only capitalize on the growing market demand but to keep our customers security at the forefront of our mission."
