Calgary, AB based TechVill Appliance Repair Ltd is working with local residents to get their appliances back up and running with minimal hassle. The company is a strong proponent of the idea that appliances should be made to last, and they are eager to do their part to help customers make the most of their purchases. Learn more on their official website.

With over 40,000 appliances repaired since 2016 (when the company first opened), TechVill Appliance Repair has built a reputation for being one of the best tech repair businesses in the area. Calgary residents with damaged appliances can find hope once more at TechVill, and the company's 98% customer satisfaction rate is proof of their commitment to producing excellent results.

Customers have brought in fridges, washing machines, ovens and dryers over the years, and these are just a few of the appliances the company can fix. To this day, Calgary residents are always welcome to bring in their broken appliances and have a professional determine how it can be brought back to working condition ? and how best to do it quickly, efficiently and within budget.

The shop is fully authorized, meaning they have all the necessary licenses and certifications to work on appliances from major brands. TechVill Appliance Repair's technicians have an average of 10 years' experience and are trusted by the manufacturers of common household appliances to handle even the most delicate repairs. By following strict protocols while also making use of skills built up over long careers, the company's technicians restore all kinds of products to their original performance, and they can do so quickly without compromising the quality of the results.

?'There's a reason we're the go-to appliance repair choice in Calgary,' says TechVill. 'Our team is one of the most trained and skilled out there. We offer mobile and emergency services that suit our customer's schedules, and we care about their needs. With a small business like ours, you get all the personal service you just don't find with the big guys. We're your neighbors. So, we're always ready to help!?

Hiring the best technicians to repair appliances is more a necessity than a preference when it comes to costly household appliances such as washing machines and dryers. Unqualified, inexperienced technicians may not be able to handle the repairs of certain appliances, and in some cases, they have been known to damage the appliances they work on even further.

TechVill seeks to help their customers hold on to their old devices through effective repairs. If repairs are impractical or impossible, their technicians will inform the customer of their options and then assist with the installation of brand new appliances if so required. If the customer's usage does not merit a new purchase, this will be reflected in the company's recommendations. They also have a Youtube channel that provides valuable information about appliance repair in Calgary.

Before recommending repairs or replacement, TechVill LTD's technicians undertake a thorough troubleshooting process whereby they attempt to find the source of a problem. The first step is to ask a series of questions that help even the most inexperienced of customers explain the source of a problem. If the issue in question falls under their expertise, a professional technician will be dispatched to take a look at the problem (after providing the customer with an estimate). In every TechVill van, technicians carry the parts that most commonly need to be replaced on broken down appliances.

It is this commitment to offering excellent service that has made TechVill Appliance Repair one of the most trusted repair companies in Calgary. Countless reviews talk about the company's quality service, and more pleased Calgary customers leave reviews every day.

"Perfect experience with Alan and Vincent," says a review from Lucia G. "It was a very educational service call concerning my LG front load washer. Alan gives ample explanations with examples which makes every instruction suggested easy to understand and follow. They are honest and offer solutions in the best interest of the customer, short and long term. Even gave tips about saving money in detergent, washer cleaner and electricity. I highly recommend this company. Alan and Vincent are the team to have on your side!?"
