Wilmington, NC based tukr has published an article on bartending trends in Houston as part of an effort to connect with more job seekers and employers. tukr is a Food Centric Working Brand that connects industry talent with restaurants, cafes, and hospitality through job postings and a resume listing board.

Houston is renowned for its diverse culinary landscape, and it is a hub for talented individuals seeking opportunities in the food service industry. tukr recognizes the importance of this dynamic market and aims to bridge the gap between job seekers and employers, fostering growth and connectivity within the local community.

To that end, the company has been working to provide food service employees in and around Houston with more opportunities, and this includes getting them up to date on the latest trends, so that they can be better prepared. tukr delves into the latest bartending trends in Houston in a recent blog post, shedding light on the evolving preferences and demands of this sector. The post not only serves as a valuable resource for professionals but also highlights tukr's commitment to staying abreast of industry trends and offering insights that can benefit employers and job seekers alike.

According to the article, a key trend in recent years has been the popularity of the speakeasy trend, with bars like Quiote and Off the Record becoming popular in local communities. Quiote's dimly lit ambiance and tucked-in location provides the bar an air of mystery that only adds to the speakeasy allure. Anyone looking for bartending jobs in Houston would do well to familiarize themselves with the ins and outs of a speakeasy-style establishment.

The article also notes that the bustling Houston cocktail scene has been witnessing a distinct shift towards Mexican spirits lately, especially with bars like Quiote leading the charge by infusing their menus with mezcal- and tequila-based creations. This, along with the fact that the Houston nightlife scene has been seeing a burgeoning love for innovative cocktails featuring vibrant colors and an imaginative garnish, should be a sign for prospective bartenders to freshen up their knowledge of mixology.

A representative for tukr commented on the bartending scene in Houston. They opined that, "Bartending is a fine art that is about more than just mixing drinks, and talented, passionate bartenders who can make a performance of their job have so much to explore and do in Houston's many wonderful bars. With the city's thirst for speakeasy charm and bold Mexican spirits being unquenchable, prospective bartenders have areas where they can aim to improve and innovate, and the team at tukr is excited to help."

They also expressed enthusiasm about the company's attempts to expand their reach. "When we established tukr," they said, "we had a simple, straightforward goal. We wanted to provide a platform that not only simplifies the job search process for professionals but also offers businesses a pool of talented individuals to choose from, and we have been doing our best to design a platform that does exactly that and more.
