The law firm specializes in cases of motor vehicle accidents. In the state of Texas, accident victims may be entitled to compensation to help them recover their quality of life before the accident. The burn injury is one of the personal injuries they can handle. Various things can cause burns, such as fires, chemicals, and heat produced by malfunctioning equipment. Victims of burn injuries typically need long-term medical care, which means a large amount of medical expenses. Severe burns can require years to heal, and in some cases, the injuries can be permanent with the damaged caused by the injury irreparable. The possible damages resulting from the burns include: nerve damage, brain damage, loss of limb, disfigurement, temporary or permanent scarring, PTSD, and emotional stress. The burn injury lawyer at Estes Law Firm will carefully evaluate each burn injury case, including the medical bills and financial losses to determine an amount for the compensation.
