They frequently offer asphalt shingle roof replacements because asphalt shingles are the most popular type of roofing material in Springfield. They often use high-quality Owens Corning and CertainTeed shingles to make sure that customers will have durable and long-lasting roofs. They also offer visualization tools, such as Owens Corning's DesignIQ and CertainTeed's Colorview, to allow customers to see how their home would look with a particular shingle style, thus allowing them to choose a specific type of shingle.

They can also provide metal roofs, synthetic slate roofs, and flat roofing. Metal roofing is gaining in popularity as more Springfield homeowners discover that metal roofs are stylish, durable, and environmentally-friendly. At A&M Roofing, they specialize in standing seam metal roofing, which is a high-performance roofing alternative that is both functional and aesthetically pleasing.

They can also offer synthetic slate roofing, which is made up of rubber and plastic composite tiles that are designed to look like slate, but are less costly, more durable, and easier to install. They can guarantee that the synthetic slate roofing they install can last for 40 to 50, or even up to 100 years.

They also want to emphasize that they can also provide commercial roofing services in Springfield and nearby areas. They also offer remodeling services, including siding replacement, siding installation, servicing of gutters, and various kinds of upgrades. They also offer roof replacements and roof repair for commercial buildings. The most common types of commercial roofing they can provide include sheet metal roofing, modified bitumen, and thermoplastic membrane flat roofs. They can also respond quickly to requests for roof repair from business owners in the area.
