December 23, 2015

December 23, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Maryland Chapter 13 Bankruptcy Attorneys have announced the reduction of their legal fees for Chapter 13 bankruptcy cases.

The legal fees have now been lowered to $525 plus $335 for the court filing fee. The attorneys feel this will be a huge relief to a person who is worried of losing his property in settlement of debts. Such an individual can now stop foreclosure in MD. The federal law is quite clear about chapter 13 bankruptcy case. That a bankrupt person will be allowed to settle his debts under supervision and protection of the bankruptcy court.

For an individual to take advantage and benefit of the offer, there are certain conditions that the person is supposed to fulfill. To begin with, the person must know that he already wants to file for bankruptcy. This implies that he should have debts that he cannot settle in time as agreed with the debtor. The case is therefore meant to assist him to settle the debts according to the plan approved by the court.

Secondly, the person seeking to file Chapter 13 bankruptcy cases with Maryland Chapter 13 Bankruptcy Attorneys should want to save hundreds of dollars on his legal fees. There will be a substantial reduction of legal fees for such kind of cases. This will enable a client who wants to stop foreclosure to spend less and save more as compared to the previous fees that was relatively high.

Maryland Chapter 13 Bankruptcy Attorneys have also made it clear a person who wants to use their legal services should show a willingness to work with the process they use to successfully file hundreds of Maryland bankruptcy cases filed each year. This will enable such an individual to stop an MD home foreclosure.

Anyone who can fulfill the above requirements for this offer can call 44-275-9001 so that he can benefit from the reduced legal fees.
