

Scottsdale Air Heating & Cooling Announces Air Duct Sealing Services In Phoenix

April 23, 2015

April 23, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Scottsdale Air Heating & Cooling, an Arizona-based heating and cooling company, has announced the availability of their air duct sealing services in the Phoenix area. These services are provided by what the company refers to as, the leading HVAC provider in Scottsdale Arizona and surrounding cities.

The latest services of the Scottsdale Air Heating & Cooling team are giving potential new and existing clients the ability to cash in on rebates of up to $650. These include one $400 utility rebate as well as a bonus rebate of $250, when their air duct sealing services are ordered. This is a short term offer with a looming expiration date. They have said the following regarding the professionalism of their team and services:

"Our heating and air conditioning business was built on trust and honesty with a courteous and professional staff. Each one of our highly trained employees are non-commissioned service technicians - which means you won't be pressured into buying more expensive or unneeded parts - it's our promise to you."

This latest endeavor into the market of air duct sealing in Phoenix is meant to expand current business within the Scottsdale and surrounding areas, and more information on the air duct assessment and sealing protocol can be viewed at <http://www.scottsdaleair.com/air-duct-assessment/>. Other services, outside of the air duct sealing in Phoenix offer include heating, HVAC products and installation, and air conditioning. A list of all local towns being serviced can be found at the company website. Other features of the website include a company blog with informational articles on home based tips and tricks, as well as customer testimonials, which supplies insight into the past successes of services that have been performed for other clients. Taking advantage of these online tools is encouraged by the company as it increases the knowledge of future clients and better explains what the company stands for and how it handles business. Testimonials can be viewed in writing or as informative videos.

The extensive rebates which are offered to consumers are described in the Specials & Promos section of the company website, where service financing is also made available to clients who require financial assistance. This can be processed through Wells and Fargo or through Lennox, depending on the products or services being financed.

Scottsdale Air Heating and Cooling encourages customer contact for questions about services, a free quote on product installation, and for more information on the company as a whole. Interested parties can also learn more by visiting the company through their many social media accounts including Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, Google+ and YouTube. They also encourage liking and sharing through social media so more consumers will save with these big rebate offers.
