Wheeler's Off-Road, Inc, a business in Grants Pass, OR, has recently released a brand new YouTube video that highlights their Old Man Emu | WheelersOffRoad.com suspension system. This system was designed for those who like to travel off road or through other types of harsh terrains.

"One major improvement that can be made to any car before the long haul is to enhance the area responsible for carrying the load and keeping all four wheels on the ground," says Josh from Wheeler's Off-Road, Inc. "We encourage everyone to ask themselves what kind of emu they are, so that they can figure out which suspension systems best suits their needs. The Old Man Emu suspension kit has been manufactured in Australia for over 20 years, and we're very happy to see that we can now bring it to the US market as well. Our introductory video clearly explains what the system is all about and how it can benefit many people.

WheelersOffRoad | Old Man Emu has entered into a partnership to ensure this suspension system is available in the US and that it is suitable for the vehicles they have there as well. "While our country may not be the great Australian outback, there is sufficient rough terrain to warrant having a suspension system that can carry heavy loads," Josh says.

People who have been using the WheelersOffRoad.com | Old Man Emu Suspension Systems have been full of praise about it. "I had seen the Old Man Emu system in action during my gap year 'down under' and I couldn't wait to have them here," says Pete J. "The minute they became available in this country, I had them installed. I've checked out the new YouTube video as well, and find it really informative. It gives people an excellent idea about just what makes this system so great and why they should consider installing it."

The YouTube video also enables the business to gain a more personal relationship with its customers, introducing not just the product and the company, but also its representatives.
