

Live365 Outage Update: Cowgirl Radio Declares "We?re Back!" with Enhanced Country and Folk Playlist

March 28, 2024

March 28, 2024 -
Cowgirl Radio is excited to announce the successful resumption of its online streaming services following an unexpected interruption on the evening of March 26, which temporarily affected their listeners and a portion of the Live365 network. Live365 is renowned for hosting a vast array of online radio stations, along with offering podcast hosting, internet radio distribution, and more. The collaborative effort from the Live365 team ensured that Cowgirl Radio is now back online, following an outage of a little over 40 hours, the team Cowgirl Radio remains ready to offer its distinctive playlist of Country, Alt-Country, Americana, Contemporary Country, Classic Soul and Alternative Folk music.

The service interruption was addressed with the help of Live365's customer support team, notably including Bernard, Aiden, Shawn and Dana, who sprung into action in an attempt to restore the service without much additional delay. Their collective response underscores both Cowgirl Radio and Live365's dedication to providing seamless access to music and content that uplifts women in the industry. They're pleased to confirm that their listeners can once again indulge in Cowgirl Radio?s carefully curated selection of country and folk music, now also featuring classical country hits.

B.D. Killen, the visionary behind Cowgirl Radio, expressed deep appreciation for the technical and support teams, particularly highlighting, "I want to extend a huge thank you to our team at Live365, especially Bernard, Aiden, Shawn and Dana, for their hard work and dedication in resolving the tech errors that briefly impacted our broadcast. Their actions reflect the partnership and dependability Live365 provides to broadcasters like us."

The temporary outage did not go unnoticed by their devoted listeners, who have warmly welcomed the return of their beloved music and the station's distinctive celebration of women's voices in country music. Throughout the disruption, Cowgirl Radio remained committed to keeping its audience informed about the service's status and the steps being taken towards recovery.

"Live365 Tech-errors: resolved! We're Back!! Listen Live!" now stands as a testament to the resilience and collaborative spirit at the heart of Cowgirl Radio and the wider Live365 network. "This experience has reinforced our commitment to providing a solid platform for internet radio. We invite listeners to reconnect with the music and stories that have made Cowgirl Radio a cherished online hub for fans of Women's Country music and more," Killen said.

Looking forward, Cowgirl Radio is excited to continue enhancing the listener experience and broadening its music selection. This ongoing dedication to growth and engaging with their community ensures that Cowgirl Radio remains at the forefront of internet radio, dedicated to celebrating and highlighting the talent and narratives of women in music.

Killen also wishes to extend a heartfelt message to Cowgirl Radio listeners, "We are overjoyed to be back and broadcasting once again. Music uniquely brings us together, and we are thrilled to keep sharing the rich and inspiring variety of Women's Country with all of you. A heartfelt thank you for your patience and steadfast support. We're eager to continue playing the music you adore, as we honor and highlight the amazing talent of women in the industry."
