December 28, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Buscemi IT Solutions, a digital marketing company that provides a comprehensive selection of services to help promote customers' brands and increase revenues, announced today that is now working with In-telligent, an app that connects users to community events. Buscemi will be engaging with In-Telligent to improve the app's search engine rankings on a local and global basis.

"SEO for apps can be a little tricky," said [spokesperson]. "A lot of potential users don't realize they need an app, though they're often very pleased when they find it. The challenge is to get a really strong sense of the app's true value proposition and build the search profile from there."

Buscemi does SEO, website design and social media marketing as well as on- and off-page optimization. Their SEO methodology is proprietary and evidence-based. The firm has a reputation for helping clients break out of the competitive pack. Each client receives a service offering customized to each client's individual experience. In-telligent informs app users on selected community news and alerts on a real time basis. The app also enables users to communicate with building management teams quickly, simply, and efficiently.
