

Happy Planet Toys Creates Toy Review Website

December 28, 2015

December 28, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

21-DECEMBER-2015 ? Happy Planet Toys is pleased to introduce their new website and blog which is devoted to helping consumers identify the most significant factors for buying toys. Several toys have already made an appearance among the detailed reviews, among them Tinker Toys.

The website information is linked to Amazon.com where the toys are further reviewed, this time by customers, and available for ordering. Because the Happy Planet Toys site links to Amazon, it aims to become a one-stop destination to assist buyers to choose the right toy and be guided to the best price in the market.

In reviewing Tinker Toys, the owners of the website praise features of the classic toy, dating from 1913, such as encouraging creativity. Building something from pre-shaped pieces permits exercise of creative efforts, reviewers say. Children can build fanciful items or can use the Tinkertoy 30 Model 200 piece set to mimic items in their daily life.

The Tinkertoy 30 Model set offered through Amazon is recommended for children of all ages three and up and the toy has long-lasting interest to most children. At a time when most toys are manufactured elsewhere, the manufacturers of Tinkertoys are committed to providing jobs for U.S. workers.

According to a spokesperson for Happy Planet Toys, ?Tinker Toys are made in the United States, so you know the high quality is built in. This particular set is fairly flexible and easy to fit together so children won't tire or become frustrated when playing with the pieces.?

The 200-piece set contains unique pieces, including flags, caps, washers, spools and rods. The included instruction sheet shows plans and instructions for around 20 different creations. An additional ten plans are available online.

Reviews of Tinkertoys and other children's toys are available at <http://www.happyplanettoys.com/toys/tinker-toys>.
