May 23, 2024 -

MP VEERA MD PA is thrilled to announce the launch of the G POEM Procedure, providing newfound hope for individuals battling Gastroparesis. This cutting-edge, minimally invasive approach, performed under the veil of general anesthesia, aims to alleviate the burdensome symptoms tied to Gastroparesis, a perplexing gastric motility issue that has stubbornly resisted conventional treatment avenues. By strategically severing the pyloric sphincter muscle, the G POEM Procedure promises improved gastric emptying, heralding a notable breakthrough in gastroenterology research and treatment.

Gastroparesis disrupts the stomach's natural, spontaneous contractions, leading to a tardy emptying process. Those affected may experience a spectrum of uncomfortable symptoms: from nausea and vomiting to feelings of early fullness, abdominal bloating, and potentially severe weight loss. Up until now, management strategies have largely revolved around dietary modifications and pharmaceutical interventions, which quite often fall short of providing significant or durable symptom relief. The initiation of the G POEM Procedure by Dr. M. P. Veerabagu symbolizes a pivotal stride towards conquering this incapacitating ailment.

Studies highlight the G POEM Procedure's capacity to markedly diminish Gastroparesis symptoms in a commendable 80% of recipients. Such statistics illuminate the procedure's value as a viable, enduring remedy for this disorder. Dr. Veerabagu, steadfast in his pursuit of integrating the latest technological advancements and procedural innovations into his practice, is committed to expanding patient access to forefront gastrointestinal healthcare solutions.

Expressing his optimism regarding the procedure, Dr. Veerabagu remarked, "The roll-out of the G POEM Procedure marks a momentous leap in our fight against Gastroparesis. Witnessing the profound toll this condition exacts on the lives of patients, the promise held by this new procedure excites us. It offers more than mere symptomatic relief; it embodies our pledge to lead the charge in devising groundbreaking care for digestive diseases."
