

Miami Fire & Water Damage Restoration Company Adds New Technology To Enhance Cleanup Services

December 29, 2015

December 29, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

VCG Fire & Water Damage Restoration Miami, a business in Miami, FL, is proud to announce that they now using groundbreaking new technology to help in the cleanup of fire and water damaged properties. They have also trained and prepared their staff designed to upgrade their skills beyond those of any other South Florida company of its kind. It is for good reason that this company is quickly becoming one of the most popular water restoration companies in the state.

"Water damage is not just inconvenient, it is a real hazard," says Bobby Lopez from VCG Fire & Water Damage Restoration Miami. "There are several health hazards involved, particularly because it is more likely for spores and mold to form, which can cause breathing difficulties for many people. More importantly, perhaps, is the fact that it can cause invisible structural damage, eventually leading to the collapse of entire properties. We have the technology and expertise available to ensure peoples' properties are restored safely overall."

VCG is one of the most popular fire restoration companies in South Florida. When a property is on fire, the fire department aims to extinguish it using water, and while this is necessary to save the property overall, it does lead to buildings suffering from both fire and water damage. Both present risks to public health and to the structural integrity of the properties.

The company has received many positive reviews for their services. "When my business was set alight by arsonists, I thought all was lost," says one local business owner. "What with the police investigation and the insurance assessor, I thought it would be best to close shop permanently. Fortunately, VCG was recommended to me and I figured I may as well give it one last shot. Thanks to their amazing work and the fantastic community spirit in this area, I am still in business today. In fact, I think the property is now better than it ever was before. Thanks VCG for playing such a pivotal role in making that possible."

Meanwhile, in terms of mold remediation Miami, officials recommend that people contact VCG as soon as possible.
