FTC Roofing, previously known as Fisher Thompson Construction, is taking a significant step in refining its focus within the industry. The company has decided to concentrate exclusively on residential and commercial roofing contractor services, moving away from solar services by the end of 2023. This move is set to further solidify its position in Englewood, Colorado, where it has been recognized for its dedication to high-quality products, meticulous installation methods, and superior customer service. Leveraging over two decades of experience, founders Thomas Fisher and his partner are set to bring an unparalleled depth of knowledge and skill to roofing services.

Dedicated to offering a broad range of solutions to suit the unique requirements of each client, FTC Roofing's service portfolio encompasses everything from minor repairs and complete roof replacements to the maintenance of both steep-slope and flat roofing systems. The company has expertise in managing various roofing materials and systems, such as asphalt shingles, metal, tile, stone-coated steel, single-ply PVC, roof coatings, TPO, EPDM, designer shingles, and polymer roofing systems. In partnering with leading manufacturers including GAF, Central States, Boral, Duro-Last, and GACO Western, FTC Roofing assures that each project adheres to the highest quality and durability standards.

FTC Roofing's distinction as a GAF Certified roofer underlines its commitment to excellence, further showcased by its offer of a five-year workmanship warranty. The company also guides its clients through the insurance claims process, a testament to its promise of stellar, customer-centered service aimed at simplifying the roofing experience.

Founder Thomas Fisher articulates the company's ethos, underscoring the commitment to providing trusted roofing solutions to the local community. By narrowing its focus to roofing, FTC Roofing is set to leverage premium materials, refined installation techniques, and elevated customer service standards to ensure each project meets their exacting criteria for excellence.
