HODL, the trailblazing DeFi project renowned for its innovative approach to income generation, has reached another milestone with the launch of its first play-to-earn (P2E) game, Moonshot. This marks a significant expansion of the HODL ecosystem, introducing an exciting avenue for users to engage with the project while earning rewards.

Players can join the excitement by visiting the official HODL website and connecting their wallets. Moonshot offers two modes of play: free-play mode and Easy level. In Easy mode, players can compete for prizes by Energy can be obtained by holding HODL Hands NFTs in their wallets or purchased with BNB, HODL, and HODLX tokens. Additionally, free energy can be earned by playing the free-play mode, further enhancing accessibility and inclusivity within the HODL ecosystem.

The launch of Moonshot marks the beginning of an exciting journey for HODL's P2E gaming initiative. In the coming weeks, the project plans to introduce more levels and new prizes each month, offering continuous excitement and opportunities for players. Titles of the upcoming games include Gem Miner, Crypto Slash, Solitaire, and Coin Catcher. Additionally, the studio-scale game Gem Fighter will offer endless battles and endless fun.

"We're committed to delivering a truly innovative P2E ecosystem that not only entertains but also empowers our community," adds the HODL CEO. "Revenue from play-to-earn will further fuel the reward pool for $HODL token investors and fund further development of the ecosystem. With Moonshot leading the way, we look forward to shaping the future of play-to-earn gaming and revolutionizing the way users interact with DeFi projects."
