

No Tie Shoelaces For Kids And Adults Now Available In Multi-Packs

January 20, 2016

January 20, 2016 -
Tampa, FL business Qi Tribe is happy to announce that after the successful launch of the no tie shoelaces in 2015, these have now been made available in multi-pack packaging. Qi laces now come in both two and three packs. The three pack in particular is considered as a family savings pack, as well as being particularly suitable for people who have multiple pairs of sneakers. The new multi 3 pack has already been positively received.

Robert Kaplan from Qi Tribe says: "Our laces have been very popular for some time now. What got us thinking is that the reality is most people have multiple pairs of shoes, particularly if they are a family. So we figured that offering them in multi-packs would be appreciated and we're very happy to see that we were right."

The laces are a type of no tie, reflective laces. While they were originally designed for running and other athletic pursuits, they have also proven to be very popular with children, as well as with people who have manual dexterity issues, such as the elderly with arthritis, for instance. Now that they are available in the multi 2 pack and 3 pack, they have become even more popular as it means these people can save money when purchasing for multiple pairs of shoes or sneakers.

The laces have been very positively received by many customers who discuss the superior quality of the laces, as well Qi Tribe's customer service. "Qi Laces are the perfect solution to our shoelace tying problem," says Laura S. "We keep trying to teach our kids to tie their laces, but the reality is that it's taking longer than we had hoped and the teachers at school don't have the time to support them... They just keep tying the laces for them. So for their school shoes, we got the Qi Laces. Now that we're sure their shoes will be tied safely and securely, they can put them on independently. The Qi laces are easy to install and use, and are of good quality - they really last, even with the beating young children give them. These are a must-have on every back to school shopping list."
