Waialua, Oahu, Hawaii ? North Shore Stables, situated in the picturesque country town of Waialua on the North Shore of Oahu, proudly announces the launch of an exhilarating ATV riding experience alongside a pioneering shoreline restoration program. This dual initiative addresses the critical issue of shoreline erosion in Hawaii, blending adventure with impactful environmental conservation.

Visitors aged 10 and up can embark on an adventurous journey across the breathtaking 67 acres of beachfront property at North Shore Stables. The new four-wheeler ATV experience offers guests an unparalleled opportunity to explore the natural beauty of Hawaii's coastline. Riders will navigate diverse landscapes, from sandy shores to verdant trails, immersing themselves in the island's unique flora and fauna.

North Shore Stables spearheads a comprehensive shoreline restoration project in tandem with the ATV adventure. This initiative focuses on combating the persistent issue of coastal erosion by reintroducing 49 species of native Hawaiian shoreline plants. These plants are vital for maintaining the integrity of the coastline, preventing erosion, and providing habitat for local wildlife.

As part of the restoration project, each ATV rider will be able to plant a native Hawaiian shoreline plant in their name. This personal contribution allows guests to leave a tangible, positive impact on the environment, fostering a deeper connection with Hawaii's natural heritage. This hands-on experience educates participants about the crucial role native plants play in sustaining coastal ecosystems.

"We are thrilled to offer this unique combination of adventure and conservation," said Adam Lee, Local Owner of North Shore Stables. "Our guests can experience the thrill of riding through stunning beachfront landscapes while directly contributing to preserving our beautiful shoreline. This program embodies our commitment to sustainability and environmental stewardship."
