June 10, 2024

LONDON, UK - June 10, 2024 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

On 10th June 2024, London-based project management training provider Knowledge Train announced its accreditation by AXELOS for the newly updated PRINCE2 Practitioner version 7 classroom courses. This recognition marks a significant milestone for project management professionals seeking to augment their expertise with the most current practices in the field. The accreditation ensures that Knowledge Train's courses are aligned with the latest global standards and best practices, providing learners with the skills necessary to manage projects successfully. The PRINCE2 Practitioner certification, renowned for its rigorous approach to project management, has been updated to reflect the evolving demands of the industry, making this qualification more pertinent than ever.

"Receiving AXELOS accreditation for our PRINCE2 Practitioner version 7 courses represents our commitment to providing top-tier training," stated Simon Buehring, Managing Director of Knowledge Train. "This accreditation not only validates the quality and relevance of our training programmes but also empowers project management professionals with the latest tools and best practices to lead projects confidently." By integrating the newest advancements and methodologies in project management, Knowledge

Train ensures that its courses remain at the forefront of the industry, providing substantial value to professionals looking to advance their careers and capabilities in managing complex projects.
