June 21, 2024 -
The Cotto Law Group has announced a new specialized service focusing on legal support for victims of apartment shootings. Known for its extensive experience in personal injury, criminal law, and family law, the firm aims to provide thorough legal assistance to those affected by these traumatic incidents.

Isaac Cotto, the firm?s founder, explained why this new service matters: "We recognize the severe impact apartment shootings have on individuals and communities. By offering specialized legal services, we strive to secure justice and fair compensation for those harmed by such incidents."

Apartment shootings can result from various issues, such as poor lighting, lack of security cameras, and inadequate tenant screening. The Cotto Law Group identifies the responsible parties, whether they are the shooter, property management, or security personnel. The firm aims to secure compensation for both financial losses like medical expenses and lost wages, and non-financial losses like pain, suffering, and emotional distress.

The Cotto Law Group has launched a dedicated webpage with information on their new apartment shootings service. It outlines the steps victims should take after an incident, such as calling 911, documenting the scene, seeking medical attention, and consulting with a shooting victim attorney. For those needing immediate help, the firm is available 24/7 for a free consultation at 770-817-7581.

The firm's approach involves working closely with law enforcement and clients to conduct a thorough investigation. They aim to build strong cases that hold negligent parties accountable under Georgia law. This new service extends their commitment to addressing legal needs in various areas of practice.
