Vancouver Personal Injury Lawyer Moves To The Cloud

January 11, 2016

January 11, 2016 -
Tim Louis & Company, which is based in Vancouver, BC, Canada, has long been known as one of Vancouver's most technologically advanced personal injury law firms. Keeping up with that reputation, they are proud to announce that they have completed their move into the Cloud in December. This means that all staff and lawyers can now access email, accounting and, most importantly, the entire contents of all client files through the Cloud, even when they are out of the office. Should they be at mediations, discoveries or trials, for instance, they will be able to access all relevant information.

Tim Louis himself says: "I am very excited about the improved service I am now able to offer all of my clients. With large files, sometimes many boxes in size, it just isn't possible to bring the entire file to every court appearance. With our move to the Cloud we now have a competitive advantage over other law firms. The entire file is on our iPad connected to the Cloud."

Deciding to move over to the Cloud was a decision not taken lightly. The company spent a year researching their various options in order to find the best way to make the move. By the Fall of 2015, it became clear that the best solution was offered by I-Worx. They have a proven track record and expertise that made the move possible.

Clients are encouraged to visit the Tim Louis & Company Law Facebook page to be kept up to date with further information about the move and other industry related news. The page also provides an opportunity for people to share reviews about their experiences with the law firm. "Hi there," says Farzad M. "Mr. Tim Louis and his team are amazingly angelic, kind, considerate, humane and brilliant. Tim and company were instrumental in helping my brother with insurance coverage and to reduce the stress on my brother. Kudos and commendations to Tim and his colleagues. Truly angels."

Tim Louis & Company is already noticing the benefits of having moved on to the Cloud. It has enabled them to better serve their clients even while they're out of the office.
