Perfectly Vivid, which is a business based in Coronado, CA, has announced that customers have reported using their tactical flashlight for late night errands. The company has recently launched a campaign asking people to share the various uses for their tactical flashlights. The latest use for the product has turned out to be to complete late night chores and errands. The company is pleased to see that people continue to find new benefits from the flashlight. Product information is available through http://perfectlyvivid.com/.

Dr. Christopher Vogelmann from Perfectly Vivid says: "We have loved receiving all the reports of how people are using our flashlight and we hope that people continue to do so. We were really interested in hearing how people use it for jobs around the house as well. What a great way to keep safe and illuminate the dark."

Various people have reported that they often struggle with certain everyday tasks that sometimes need to be done in the dark. One person reported that they almost always forget to put the trash out, and find themselves having to do so in the dark. The flashlight has enabled them to do this safely. Similarly, people have reported that the light is helpful for locating things in the garage or for checking circuit breakers and more.

The company is encouraging people to explain how they are using their flashlight through their Facebook page on https://www.facebook.com/perfectlyvivid/?fref=ts. Additionally, the page contains valuable information on how others have used the light. Important industry news is also added regularly, and people are welcomed to join in on the conversation.

The fact that the flashlight is commonly used for late night errands is becoming abundantly clear. "I love my Perfectly Vivid flashlight so much that I have several," says Suze N. "I have one in each room and bedroom in case of power outages. There is one in my kitchen drawer as well, and that one gets used all the time, whenever I need to do something outside in the dark. And the kids love the wand that comes with it, they are pretending to be Jedi Knights with it now. I just hope they don't give away what happens in the new Star Wars movie."
