Bariatric Surgery Mexico, a clinic in Tijuana, Baja California, Mexico, is proud to announce that they now offer weight loss surgery as a way to assist people who have problems with obesity. Various options are offered that are designed to be far more affordable than their US counterparts. As a result, the obesity help is already proving to be very popular.

Alma Orozco from Bariatric Surgery Mexico says: "Obesity is a global problem that is causing serious health problems. While most insurance companies now do cover bariatric surgery, they have some very stringent acceptance requirements that not everybody meets, and they often don't cover all of the procedures. We offer an affordable option for people who need bariatric surgery in our state of the art facility in Tijuana and encourage everyone to contact us to find out more."

There are numerous weight loss surgery options available today, and patients often feel overwhelmed by the number of choices that are out there. This is why the clinic in Mexico always offers a full consultation first, whereby the different options are discussed. Additionally, it will allow the surgeon to assess each individual case on its own merit, which will allow him to make recommendations on which option is most suitable for each patient.

The clinic has received numerous positive reviews since it started offering bariatric surgery, with patients from all over the world attending it.

"Dr. Fernando Garcia, Once again I must thank you for the opportunity of having a better quality of life that you have provided me," says Jeff P. "I was so near death, I had been recently hospitalized with something they called an infection. My legs had swollen to 24 inches around and I could barely breathe. Now I am a 270 lb man, I no longer have sleep apnea, I can tie my own shoes, no more slip on shoes, and I can buy clothes at the same place everyone else does."

Alma Orozco also encourages everyone to visit the clinic's website, where they can find answers to the question on 'what is bariatric surgery'. In so doing, people will be better prepared and empowered to make the choices that are right for them, even before they decide to book a consultation.
