Recognizing the need for HR expertise in the non-profit sector, Canadian HR Consulting firm, Salopek & Associates Ltd. has launched a Non-Profit HR Program to provide accessible and cost effective support to growing NPOs.

The Non-Profit HR Program is a cost effective option for organizations that require HR planning and support to continue growing and developing their people and organizational effectiveness. Offering reduced hourly rates exclusively to non-profits that are committed to developing their HR and people processes, the Non-Profit HR Program includes a complimentary initial HR Assessment and Action Plan, as well as periodic Touch Point Meetings free of charge to ensure organizations are achieving their target HR objectives at every stage of the Program.

Offering three levels of support within the Program: Basic, General and Strategic, organizations are provided with expertise at all stages of their growth, from building foundational people processes and programs to strategically aligning their organizational and HR plan.

With 40% of Salopek & Associates' clients being non-profit organizations, the company felt well positioned to launch a Program that would provide HR expertise tailored specifically to the sector. Speaking to the Program and value it delivers to NPOs, Amanda Salopek, Partner of Salopek & Associates Ltd. says, "strong people programs and processes are essential for non-profits to effectively attract and retain employees. As a team that works extensively within the non-profit sector, our Consultants understand the HR challenges non-profits face. The Non-Profit HR Program provides affordable HR support to NPOs who lack internal expertise, and enables organizations to develop this capacity internally."

Recently nominated as a 2015 finalist for Top External HR Consultancy of the Year by Canadian HR Awards, Salopek & Associates is excited to be introducing this Program to make their acclaimed services accessible to a sector that is in need of cost effective HR support and expertise.
