Wilmington Realty Property Management has announced a new venture into real estate sales, offering a complete solution for clients interested in buying or selling properties. Having established a solid reputation as a reliable property management company since 1985, Wilmington Realty aims to bring the same level of trust and expertise to its new sales services.

Rebecca Hall, a representative for Wilmington Realty, explained the reason for the expansion. "Our clients have shown great trust in our property management services over the years. This move into real estate sales is a natural step to better serve their needs. We aim to provide the same hassle-free experience in real estate transactions as we have done in property management."

The new real estate sales service will cater to clients in Wilmington and surrounding areas like Kings Grant, Hampstead, Porters Neck, Monkey Junction, Forest Hills, and neighborhoods near the University of North Carolina Wilmington (UNCW). Adding real estate sales will complement their existing services, which include managing residential and commercial rentals.

Popular areas like Wrightsville Beach, Forest Hills, Ogden, Bayshore, Porters Neck, Kings Grant, Castle Hayne, Wrightsboro, Murrayville, Monkey Junction, Myrtle Grove, and Leland are all covered. Detailed listings of these properties can be found on their Residential Rentals page.

Besides residential rentals, the company manages commercial rental properties, offering office spaces in locations like Oak Park and Fifth Avenue. Wilmington Realty's website features an online portal for tenants and property owners. This portal allows them to manage rent payments, maintenance requests, and view property information easily.

Rebecca Hall also explained the level of support clients can expect during the buying or selling process. "We manage all administrative tasks and offer insightful advice on the local property market. Our goal is to make the entire process smooth and stress-free for our clients," she said.

The company's website now boasts a range of real estate listings for potential buyers. Wilmington Realty has a team of expert Real Estate Agents in Wilmington NC who are prepared to guide clients through the property buying process.

The expansion into real estate sales marks an important milestone for the company, enabling them to serve the Wilmington community more effectively.
