Renowned Beverly Hills hair salon John Francis Beauty is proud to announce that clients can now book their services online through their website. The salon, which is the business of choice for many celebrities, decided to offer this online facility so that people are able to make bookings at a time that is more convenient to them. It is already being used very frequently.

John Francis, founder and owner of John Francis Beauty, says: "I want to make sure that my clients have a perfect experience with my salon from start to finish. This cannot be achieved if they find they have to take time out of their own schedule in order to make an appointment. By offering online booking facilities, people can now arrange their appointments when it is convenient to them, rather than when it is convenient to me and my staff. I'm happy to see that this is being appreciated."

The salon boasts of clients such as Paula Abdul, Sting, Serena Williams and Hugh Jackman, to name but a few. Needless to say, appointment books tend to fill up very quickly. Luckily, by booking online, people are likely to find a spot much more quickly than the traditional way. The John Francis Beauty online booking facility also highlights the different types of services that clients can book and how long an appointment is likely to take.

The services the salon have offered have long been very positively reviewed, which is one of the many reasons why John Francis is known as one of the most sought after celebrity and editorial hair stylists. "I have crazy wavy thick curls and you gave me the best blow out sleek look ever for a morning Summer KTLA segment at Cross Creek Malibu," says Krista W. "Thank you."

The online booking facility can be accessed through the salon's website on johnfrancisbeauty.com. It is also offered through the salon's Facebook page, which is an incredibly popular page where people have shared the results of their hairstyles and their experiences with John Francis as an expert celebrity and editorial stylist.
