Burke Bros Moving Group has just published a detailed article on the top expat jobs in Australia for 2024. This international removals team did lots of research to put together this guide, aiming to help those interested in moving to Australia by highlighting the most in-demand jobs across various sectors.

Their research shows that healthcare, IT, engineering, education, and trades and services are the main industries seeking expats in 2024. More specific jobs include general practitioners, specialists, nurses, and mental health professionals in healthcare. In IT, roles like cybersecurity experts and software developers are needed. Engineering also has various positions open. In education, there's a high demand for qualified teachers and educational administrators. The trades and services sector is looking for skilled workers in many different areas.

Gary Burke, CEO of Burke Bros Moving Group, said, "Our team has worked hard to gather all the necessary information to help prospective expats find suitable job opportunities in Australia. We aim to make the transition as smooth as possible for those looking to make this significant life change."

The report not only lists available jobs but also explains how to apply for skilled migration visas. It gives details on the Skilled Independent Visa (subclass 189), Skilled Nominated Visa (subclass 190), and Skilled Work Regional Visa (subclass 491). Each visa type has its own benefits and requirements, making them suitable for professionals with different skills and experiences.

The article also advises consulting registered migration agents due to the complex nature of migration laws. This help should boost the chances of a successful visa application.
