January 18, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Herman Grant Company, a business in Chattanooga, TN, has announced that they are celebrating the fact that they have been in business for 52 years. During this time, they have set themselves apart as a true asphalt plant equipment leader. For the company, dedication to improvement has been vital to their success, and they are always at the forefront of new, more up to date equipment. This is something they are highly respected for by their many clients.

Paula Shuford from the Herman Grant Company says: "We are 52 years in business. Over half a century. We believe that we have been able to achieve this thanks to two things. First, our dedication and commitment to only offering the best. And secondly, probably most importantly, the continued trust our customers have placed in us. We look forward to the next milestone and really thank our customers for their support."

The company is known for their huge variety of asphalt plant parts. Within the asphalt industry, it is vital that equipment and parts are of the highest possible quality as any faults could have significant repercussions on public safety. Companies know that they can turn to Herman Grant Company and trust that they will receive the best, which is something that they have stood for all this time.

"The asphalt industry is a complex industry," says Paul Shuford. "While it is an industry that is likely to always exist, many businesses within it struggle financially. One of the things that have always stood out to me about Herman Grant Company is that they are committed to keeping the industry in the black. That alone is something that is truly appreciated. But they are about more than that as well. They are committed to quality and being up to date with industry developments. You just know that when you get something from them, it is going to be good. Congratulations on your 52 years in business and onward and upwards to the next one."
