September 03, 2024 -
BROOKLYN, NY - In response to the tragic construction accident that occurred on June 28, 2024 in Brooklyn, Brian Mittman, a prominent attorney at Markhoff & Mittman, P.C., has released a statement highlighting the complexities surrounding unwitnessed accidents in the construction industry.

The incident, which involved a worker being found severely injured in an excavated area, has raised important questions about workplace safety and the legal challenges faced by injured workers in unwitnessed accidents.

Attorney Mittman stated, "This unfortunate event serves as a stark reminder of the risks construction workers face daily, especially when accidents occur unwitnessed and in potentially hazardous conditions. In situations like this, injured workers often face significant hurdles in proving the circumstances of the accident, which can complicate their pursuit of rightful compensation."

Mittman emphasized the importance of strict safety protocols on construction sites and the need for comprehensive support for injured workers. He added, "Our firm is prepared to assist the injured worker and their family during this challenging time, ensuring their rights are protected and that they receive the justice and compensation they deserve."

Markhoff & Mittman, P.C. specializes in workers' compensation and construction accident cases. The firm is closely monitoring the investigation of this incident and stands ready to take necessary legal actions to hold responsible parties accountable.
