

SCENE CARE

New Suicide Cleaning Service In Chicago Launched

January 19, 2016

January 19, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Scene Care, a cleaning business in Crystal Lake, IL, has added suicide cleaning to its list of services. They point out that they are now one of the few companies offering suicide cleanup Chicago residents can go to. Because of the delicate nature of this type of work, very few businesses are involved in it. As such, the new service is already attracting a lot of attention.

Mike Costigan of Scene Care says: "Suicides, unfortunately, have been on the rise. We saw a significant increase in the number of incidences over the holiday period, as is common each year, and noticed the difficulties this has caused for families and authorities alike. As such, we have decided to add suicide cleanups to our list of services."

Scene Care is a five star rated service that offers its expertise across the nation 24/7 for 365 days a year. They are prompt, fully insured and licensed and have many years of experience in trauma, crime scene, blood, and hoarding cleanup services. Having added suicide cleanup to this means they now offer a truly comprehensive cleaning service. The business is fully family owned and operated and they pride themselves on their professionalism and compassionate attitude.

Being one of the only suicide cleaning services Chicago residents can make use of, they are finding themselves in high demand and they have been very positively reviewed. "I can't begin to explain how horrible it is to have a loved one commit suicide," says Sarah N. "I'm so happy I found Scene Care. They arrived in unmarked vans to ensure our privacy and they were just so respectful and courteous throughout the entire cleanup. It gave me the opportunity to grieve in peace, rather than having to deal with something that is nothing short of horrific."

The company has made sure that all their staff members are fully trained in dealing with suicide cleanups, which is about much more than the simple act of cleaning. They are known for their compassion, enabling those left behind to move on with their lives as much as possible. They will also work with all the relevant authorities in terms of collecting any necessary evidence following a suicide.
