Chicago Website Design SEO Company (CWDSC) is looking to expand its team by hiring an appointment setter. The company, which offers services like local SEO, web design, and AdWords management, has seen steady growth since it started in 2012. This new job opening gives motivated individuals a chance to help the company continue growing.

The job involves making calls to potential clients, setting up appointments for the sales team, and explaining the benefits of CWDSC's digital marketing services. The appointment setter will also qualify leads and manage client data in the company's CRM system. This role aims to improve the company's outreach and increase client conversion rates.

Jack Lombardi, CEO of CWDSC, spoke about the importance of this role: "The appointment setter will be essential to our growth strategy. By scheduling and managing client appointments, this person will help us reach more businesses that need our services."

CWDSC works with a wide range of clients, from small local businesses to large eCommerce companies.

The company manages over $300,000 in monthly AdWords campaigns and hosts more than 500 websites. The new appointment setter will help maintain and strengthen these relationships.

The position comes with competitive pay, flexible hours, and opportunities for professional growth. CWDSC is committed to creating a positive work environment, which aligns with the company's focus on employee satisfaction and development.

The ideal candidate for this role will speak fluent U.S. English and have excellent communication skills. While previous experience in appointment setting is preferred, it's crucial that candidates are self-motivated and reliable. The job involves reading a script during calls, so attention to detail and consistency are important.

To apply, candidates must complete an appointment setter application, which includes recording their voice reading a provided script. They should then upload their recording, resume, and cover letter through an online form.

Jack Lombardi added: "We want proactive individuals who can manage their time well and interact professionally with potential clients. This job offers a chance to grow within our company and make a significant contribution to our success."

CWDSC has earned a strong reputation in the industry with a wide range of services. The company offers local SEO to boost local search visibility, search engine optimization to help businesses rank higher on Google, and professional web design aimed at increasing conversion rates and driving traffic. Other key services include AdWords management and reputation management to enhance online presence and manage negative reviews.

Apart from these services, the company provides a free local SEO audit report and a 30-minute web consultation.
