Connect Support Group Launches Comprehensive Services with Expert Support Coordinators for People with Disabilities

September 04, 2024

September 04, 2024 -
Connect Support Group has rolled out new services to improve life for people with disabilities. This NDIS registered provider, based in Australia, offers services in English, Mandarin, and Cantonese to meet the needs of a diverse group of clients. Visit Connect Support Group to learn more about their extensive services and support options.

The new services include NDIS Support Coordination, Social and Community Access, Assistance with Daily Life, NDIS Occupational Therapy, and NDIS Plan Management. Each service is designed to help with different aspects of daily living and community involvement for people with disabilities.

"Introducing these services is a significant step in providing holistic support to our clients," said the CEO of Connect Support Group. "Our goal is to ensure they can live as independently as possible and stay engaged in their communities."

The NDIS Support Coordination service helps clients navigate the complexities of the NDIS. Support coordinators assist clients in connecting with the right service providers, exploring different options, and coordinating support to achieve their NDIS plan goals. The skilled team at Connect Support Group ensures clients are well-supported every step of the way.

Social and Community Access services focus on helping clients get more involved in their communities. This service aims to foster social interactions and community engagement, which are important for personal growth and mental health.

Assistance with Daily Life is tailored to help clients with everyday personal activities, whether at home, in the community, or both. This service promotes independence and helps clients lead fulfilling lives.

NDIS Occupational Therapy is another key service provided by Connect Support Group. The organization's occupational therapists work closely with clients to improve their ability to engage in activities that bring meaning and purpose to their lives. These therapists create personalized plans that focus on enhancing daily functions and overall quality of life.

NDIS Plan Management aims to give clients more control over their NDIS budget. This service includes managing funding and paying bills, allowing clients to make decisions without dealing with administrative tasks. Clients can focus on their goals and needs while Connect Support Group handles the financial details.

"Our comprehensive services are designed to offer the best possible support for our clients and their families," said a spokesperson for Connect Support Group. "We are excited to help more people achieve their personal and NDIS plan goals with these customized services."

One notable aspect of Connect Support Group is its support for carers of children with disabilities or developmental delays. The organization also provides resources and information about the NDIS, ensuring that families are well-informed.

The company has further enhanced its services by setting up a client portal for easy management of services. A live chat option is also available for immediate assistance, making it simpler for clients to get the support they need when they need it.

For those interested in learning more about the services Connect Support Group offers or needing immediate assistance, the organization provides several ways to get in touch. To connect with support coordinators and explore their offerings, visit their respective service pages.
