

Boiler Repair And Installation Company Releases Info On Signs Indicating New Boiler Is Needed

January 14, 2016

January 14, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

LB Plumbing and Heating, a business in London, United Kingdom, has released a new blog post designed to help people identify whether they need to install a new boiler. Through the new post, the company aims to ensure people are able to have the safest, greenest boiler systems in their property. The blog can be found on <http://lbplumbingandheating.com/tell-tale-signs-home-needs-new-london-boiler-installation/>.

Ray Le Blanc of LB Plumbing and Heating says: "Nobody wants to replace a boiler because they are very expensive. While there is no way around the fact that installing a new boiler is indeed costly, the reality is also that a faulty boiler will often cause more expenses, including the drastic reduction in efficiency. Our blog post offers a guide that shows people when repairs may still be viable, and when it is time to pull the plug and get a new one."

Boiler repairs are often very expensive as well, albeit cheaper than replacing the full system. However, if a boiler has to be repaired multiple times, it quickly becomes more expensive than a replacement. Additionally, when a boiler is replaced, it is often more energy efficient, leading to greater savings across the board. LB Plumbing and Heating has also partnered with some of the world's best boiler manufacturers to ensure their clients always get the best.

The services offered by the company have been positively reviewed by their many clients. "Having a number of properties in the area, I have always had a bit of a nightmare finding the right plumbers for the various jobs that need doing," says Martin H. "I stumbled across Ray Le Blanc after a friend recommended him and I needed a certificate for a new semi, which he did very efficiently and since then I've sent a number of jobs his way which he has coped with extremely well and his prices are fantastic. I wouldn't use anyone else now."

People are encouraged to read the blog post in order to find out whether or not they may need to replace their boiler. Whether they require replacement or repair, or even the full installation of a bathroom suite, they can contact Ray Le Blanc for assistance.
