London, UK, JAN 10, 2016 ? Statistically consumers research products online before buying them 78% of the time sending businesses a clear message of 'be visible online or get ready to close shop.' In keeping with their mission to educate website owners, White Hat SEO (www.whitehat-seo.co.uk) has just published a new blog post entitled 'Beyond Local Online Presence: How Your Local Business Can Keep the Cash Register Ringing with ?Local Buzz? .'

The article discusses how ?optimizing an online presence is a necessity. Some 90% use search engines such as Google to look for products and services. If a business does not appear on search results, even their neighbours might not purchase from their shop, and it?s because they are ?invisible? on Google. So, business owners employ agencies and professionals to conduct SEO or search engine optimization for their website.'

?You need to optimize your local online presence in other web properties, such as social media, maps, review sites, and local listings,? states Clwyd Probert, author of the article and founder of WhiteHat SEO. ?They not only help improve your website?s overall rankings, they also ensure your local business shows up for more search results on Google.?

The article states that 'to create local buzz for your business, you need to reinforce your typical SEO work with these location-targeted approaches such as ensuring NAP Presence and Consistency, checking for Duplicate Places Listings, getting Published on Review/Rating Sites, encouraging Social Media Reviews and facilitating Web Check-ins.'

'These are only some of the methods you can use to create a local buzz for your local business,' stated Probert. 'Yes, traditional SEO will help your website rank well on Google search.
