Govivo, a provider of a number of health and fitness products, has announced that their running pouch or belt is now a bestselling item. The product is available through Amazon, which is where the business markets all of their items. Further details about their products are available on the company's website.

The media director of Govivo says: "We're so happy to see that our running belt is so popular and that different people are finding such a wide variety of uses for it."

A number of things are believed to have contributed to the popularity of the running belt. Firstly, it comes with two lightweight, water-resistant pouches, which expand up to 7 1/2 inches wide by 5 1/2 inches high. These are perfect to hold a smartphone, up to the size of an iPhone 5s or HTC One, in the first pouch and other essentials in the second pouch whereby the phone is protected from getting scratched. Full details about materials can be found on the company's official website.

Furthermore, the durable buckle delivers tight fit and stability. Hence, there is no bouncing or riding up. Additionally, the reinforced YKK zipper withstands intensive use, thereby eliminating the fear of losing or breaking something. Also, the comfortable elastic waistband prevents chafing and is fully adjustable for waist sizes 28 to 48, making it suitable for all family members. The belt is available in black, pink, yellow and blue. It can also be used as a money belt for travel purposes, as it provides concealed storage.

People who have tried the belt have commented on the fact that it is suited for activities such as cross-country or trail running, beach walking, riding a bike or motorcycle, doing errands, visiting Disney, hiking or other fitness activities. "I bought this running belt to replace an arm band that I used for my phone," says Aaron J. "My Samsung Galaxy S4 fits in the expandable pockets with plenty of room to spare. I like having two pockets, so that my keys won't bounce around and scratch my phone. The belt can easily be worn with the buckle in the back for better access to the pockets."

Govivo is a family owned and operated business.The company offers a wide variety of products which can be found on the Amazon marketplace. More about them, and the list of products that they offer, can be seen on their official website.
