CHERRY HILL, NJ - October 01, 2024 -
All In Solutions Counseling Center Cherry Hill has just announced the addition of new family therapy programs. These programs aim to provide comprehensive support for people dealing with substance abuse. The New Jersey-based addiction treatment center believes that involving family members can help achieve long-term recovery. This new initiative adds to the wide range of treatments already available at the center, including residential care, partial hospitalization, and intensive outpatient programs.

The new family therapy programs at the addiction treatment center in Cherry Hill focus on improving communication and relationships among family members. The center thinks that family involvement can greatly enhance an individual's recovery journey. These programs incorporate various therapeutic approaches to address family dynamics and create a supportive home environment that encourages recovery.

Dennis Ryan, a representative of All In Solutions Counseling Center Cherry Hill, shared his excitement about the new initiative: "Our new family therapy programs show our dedication to providing thorough care. By involving family members in the recovery process, we can address underlying issues and create a supportive environment essential for long-term success."

In addition to the new family therapy programs, the addiction treatment center offers a variety of other services. Their detox program is designed to help patients safely withdraw from substances under medical supervision. After detox, individuals can move to residential treatment, where they receive round-the-clock clinical and medical care. For those who need intensive care but prefer to stay off-site, the Partial Hospitalization Program (PHP) provides a structured treatment plan while allowing patients to return home each day.

The Intensive Outpatient Program (IOP) offers flexibility, enabling individuals to continue their treatment while managing personal and work responsibilities. This program includes scheduled therapy sessions and support groups, making it possible for individuals to maintain their daily routines while receiving the care they need. Additionally, the center's trauma-focused program supports those whose substance abuse is linked to traumatic experiences, offering specialized treatments to address these underlying issues.

Dennis Ryan added, "With our wide range of services, we can meet the varied needs of those seeking help with substance abuse. From detox to outpatient care, we offer a continuum of care that supports individuals at every stage of their recovery journey."
