RICHMOND, VA - October 30, 2024 -
NextDAY Cabinets, a well-known distributor of high-quality bathroom products in the Washington D.C., Maryland, and Virginia areas, has exciting news. They're expanding their range of bath products to offer even more options for contractors, designers, and homeowners. This move aims to strengthen their position as a main resource for anyone working on bathroom renovations or new builds, with a focus on offering a wide variety of bathtubs to suit different tastes and needs.

Among the latest additions to their lineup, NextDAY Cabinets is introducing various bathtub styles such as freestanding, alcove, drop-in, and corner tubs. Each type has its unique appeal. Freestanding bathtubs add a touch of elegance to any bathroom, serving as a stylish centerpiece. Alcove tubs are perfect for smaller spaces, as they fit snugly against three walls. Drop-in tubs offer flexibility in design with their deck-mounted installation potential. Corner tubs use space efficiently and bring a touch of luxury to even the smallest bathrooms.

A spokesperson from NextDAY Cabinets Richmond stated, "Introducing expanded bathtub options showcases our dedication to meeting and exceeding the expectations of our customers. Our mission is to deliver quality and variety, ensuring that every client can find something that perfectly complements their style and needs."

NextDAY Cabinets offers bathtubs made from a range of materials including acrylic, fiberglass, cast iron, and solid surface. Each material has its benefits. Acrylic bathtubs are lightweight, making them easy to install, and come in many shapes and sizes. Fiberglass tubs are budget-friendly and provide decent durability and heat retention. Cast iron tubs are known for their timeless look and excellent heat retention, offering durability that can't be matched. Solid surface tubs have a smooth and unified look, ideal for modern spaces.

NextDAY Cabinets provides professional design services to help customers through the entire selection process. This ensures that each client can find the perfect bathtub for their specific bathroom projects. The team at NextDAY Cabinets focuses on important design aspects like size, style, and functionality to provide personalized assistance.
